

For a sustainable trip to Patagonia

- Don't feed animals
- Bring reusable water bottles
- Buy local products
- Minimise your waste
- Use marked hiking trails
- Spread the word!

Patagonia is much more than breathtaking...

It is also one of the wildest places left on Earth. Yet, this region has come under attack, as outside industries seek to exploit these precious natural resources for short-term gain. Looking globally, we see that the loss of biodiversity and the destruction of ecosystems threaten to eliminate thousands of species and destabilize the ecosystems on which humanity depends. As conservation biologists claim, our best shot at reversing this trend is to protect large tracts of habitat areas, recover damaged ecosystems, and work with local communities.
